Highlights of my website

I made a working website for a take-out restaurant. The attractive colours used in the website give it a funky look. The website is fully functional which means while being a website which promotes the restaurant and attracts more customers, it also lets user order food online. I used javascript and PHP to make the code where the user can select their burger and side orders and look at the total money it costs. The website also uses intensive PHP and HTML for the users to enter the credit card details or if they want to leave a feedback for the company. The responsive layout of the website means that it will be visually appealing in all types of screen sizes. The use of various images and the colour scheme together makes the website more engaging and appealing.
